

A Newsletter from the Princeton Battlefield Society - Fall 2022

Our 3rd annual Young Patriots Day was held on September 18. It was an exciting and meaningful day for over 125 kids and their families. The day, starting with a ceremonial flag raising with General George Washington and Michael Russell, Princeton Battlefield Society president, accompanied by an honor guard of New Jersey Grays and a fife and drum team, was filled with activities and presentations. There were musket and cannon firings, marching and drilling, conversations with General Washington and Ben Franklin, Clarke House artifacts, planting of seeds for winter crops at a new 18th century house garden, games and activities for kids sponsored by Friends of Washington Crossing-Pennsylvania, the 250th Anniversary trailer and displays from the Ocean County Cultural & Heritage Commission, and information tables from area historic organizations and sites.

The day was capped off with a New Jersey Sons of the American Revolution ceremony unveiling a new plaque at the Clarke House cannon commemorating the death of Brigadier General Hugh Mercer.

We thank the following for making the 2022 Young Patriots Day a huge success.

- Society of the Cincinnati
- Doug Aumack – 18th century medicine

★★★ TRAVERSING THE ★★★ TEN CRUCIAL DAYS BUS TOUR

Are you looking for an opportunity to retrace the December 25 Crossing of the Delaware and the December 26, 1776 through January 3, 1777 American and British military engagements at Trenton, Princeton and areas in-between? Here's a tour for you.

Historical interpreters Roger Williams and Larry Kidder, on behalf of the Friends of the Washington Crossing Park-Pennsylvania, will tell the remarkable story of the ten days in 1776-77 that breathed crucial new life and a new sense of possible victory into the American Revolution. Events are discussed in the context of the strategically important central New Jersey towns, villages, and farms. Real people are weaved into their presentations – Quakers, Presbyterians, and Anglicans, each with views on their loyalty to the Revolution or the King or as neutrals. These are some of the same people who appear in the 28 Eyewitness of the American Revolution cards and in the videos produced by the Princeton Battlefield Society.

Hear how the terrain, weaponry and weather influenced the ways the battles were fought and how the lives of local people were disrupted. See where armies marched, fought and struggled to survive on an otherwise peaceful landscape, while the course of American history hung in the balance.

The next public bus tours will be offered on December 4 and 10 and January 7, the day before our Experience the Battle of Princeton.

Tours last from 9 AM to 5 PM. The cost is $150 per person and includes bus fare, lunch, and donations to Washington Crossing Historic Park, The Washington Crossing Park Association-New Jersey, The Old Barracks Museum in Trenton and the Princeton Battlefield Society.

To register for one of these public tours, please visit <https://www.washingtoncrossingpark.org/traversing-bus-tour/>

Thank you to Laura Wirpzsza and Todd Quackenbush, Clean Up Day co-chairs, and the volunteers who donated time to cleaning up the Park on October 22. And thank you to HomeDepot-Hamilton for top soil, mulch and Fall mum for our new kiosk and to Wegman's for water, snacks, and paper goods.

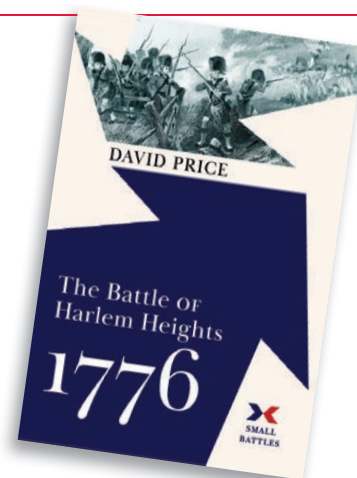

BOOK RECCOMENDATION

THE BATTLE OF HARLEM HEIGHTS, 1776

by David Price

David Price is an Historical Interpreter for the PBS Battlefield Tour Program and the author of JOHN HASLET'S WORLD, THE ROAD TO ASSUNPINK CREEK, and RESCUING THE REVOLUTION. He reviews his new book for our HUZDAH! newsletter.

The Battle of Harlem Heights is a largely unappreciated milestone in American military history. This engagement on upper Manhattan Island on September 16, 1776 presaged the gradual emergence of an effective fighting force among the citizen-soldiers who made up the Continental Army and bore the brunt of young America's struggle for political and economic self-determination. The cooperative effort of regiments from New England, Maryland, and Virginia—whose men lacked any sense of national identity before the Revolution—indicated the potential for this fledgling army to cohere around a common national purpose and affiliation and become the primary instrument for gaining American independence.

The action began when a contingent of rangers led by Colonel Thomas Knowlton of Connecticut encountered British light infantry while conducting a reconnaissance mission. What began as a skirmish transformed into a full-fledged battle as both sides reinforced, and a heavy engagement continued for several hours until, with ammunition running low, the British withdrew. Washington decided not to pursue and risk confrontation with a larger force, thereby keeping his army intact. In The Battle of Harlem Heights, 1776, the significance of the Continental Army's victory highlights the role of one of its key participants, the largely forgotten Knowlton—"father of American military intelligence"—who gave his life during the action while urging his rangers forward.

★★★★ UPDATES ★★★★★

COMMUNITY OUTREACH

On August 28 we participated at the Washington-Rochambeau Trail's "March to Yorktown" in Westfield, New Jersey. Representing us in the parade and at our information table were Ben Franklin (aka Rob DeVitis) and trustees, Mike Duffy and Todd Quackenbush. Thanks to Julie Didell, chair of the New Jersey W3R Trail, for organizing the event.

Our annual Battlefield Tour Program for 2022 ended on October 16. This was our fourth year of organized tours on Sundays from May to October. This year, despite two weather-related postponements, we had about 200 attendees, both adults and children. Thank you to our Historical Interpreters, Larry Kidder, David Price, Roger Williams, and Will Krakower, as well as to our "chief facilitator," Kim Gallagher, for making 2022 another success. We're looking forward to 2023! Anyone interested in volunteering for this program should let us know at info@pbs1777.org.

We welcomed various groups for Fall tours, including members of the Springdale Country Club (September 15), ROTC Rutgers staff ride (October 7), and volunteers and staff from Washington Crossing Historic Park – Pennsylvania (October 8).

Let us hear from you if your group is interested in partnering with the Princeton Battlefield Society on a historic community project.

For example, we will be working with members of the Springdale Country Club (site of Washington's march into Princeton after the January 3, 1777 battle) on developing a historic marker and planting a descendant of the Mercer Oak.

A NEW 18TH CENTURY GARDEN AT THE CLARKE HOUSE

Congratulations and thanks to Caleb Collins, Troop 27, for building a new 18th century garden outside the Clarke House. This was Caleb's Eagle Scout Project. Young Patriots Day was the perfect opportunity for kids to help plant seeds for winter vegetables.

THE RAOUL MOMO VISITOR KIOSK

Our new visitor kiosk at the Park's parking lot was made possible with proceeds from the 2018 Mercer Oak Award reception honoring Raoul Momo. The kiosk makes historic and recreational information available to visitors.

“WE’RE CLOSED!” SIGN AT THE CLARKE HOUSE

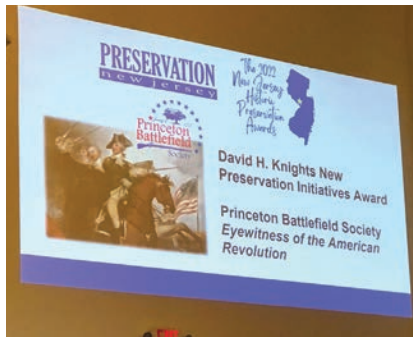

That’s a good sign! It means we are taking the next steps in creating a new educational exhibit in the Clarke House museum. Following painting, repairs, a new floor, and required upgrades by the State DEP, the rooms are currently ready for the exhibit’s builders, who visited the museum on October 24.

Stay tuned for our big announcement:
“NEW EXHIBIT OPEN.”

HONORS FROM PRESERVATION NEW JERSEY

The Princeton Battlefield Society was awarded the David H. Knights New Jersey Preservation Award for our Eyewitness of the American Revolution initiative.

The award, which was accepted on October 12 by Michael Russell, PBS president, is given annually to an organization or individual that has created new initiatives and new opportunities for preservation, education, and/or community engagement in New Jersey.

SECOND EYEWITNESS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION VIDEO

Thank you to Americana Corner for funding our second video of six “eyewitnesses” at the Battle of Princeton. Now in the editing process, the video features: Colonel Edward Hand (1st Pennsylvania Rifle Regiment), Major John Kelly (Northumberland County Militia), John Hood (3rd Battalion of Philadelphia Associators), Joseph Clark (College of New Jersey student), Colonel John Haslet (Delaware Militia), and Brigadier General Hugh Mercer. The project was directed by Paul Kelley, with Matt Matrале as videographer.

Once released, this Americana Corner-sponsored video will appear on the PBS website, www.pbs1777.org. The first video, underwritten by a New Jersey Historic Trust grant, is currently available for viewing on our website.
